Crederian Fund Services LLC Launches Educational Series

Media, PA -- Crederian Fund Services LLC has inaugurated a series of educational articles under the title, "What does it mean for investment managers?" Vince Ciavardini, Crederian's President and CEO stated, "The idea is to focus on topics of interest to investment managers and provide them with actionable analysis of the issue." The first piece in the new educational series looks at the value of system integration in the context of fund administration services. The article highlights the benefits of system integration, delineates the functions required in performing fund administration services and provides various examples of how Crederian's integrated system platform enabled clients to achieve their goals. Crederian envisions responding to inquiries from the industry on topics of interest; Crederian also plans to partner with industry accountants and attorneys as guest contributors to this educational series.
